Barb Baur was born in 1965 in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. She was always interested in art and making things as far back as early grade school.

She began studying jewelry as an apprentice while in high school being referred to a local jeweler by her advanced art teacher. After graduation, she continued her jewelry fabrication education independently at a local college and later at a trade school in Florida. Baur has extensive experience as a bench jeweler, a jewelry artist, and a teacher of the art. Currently, Baur works from her studio in Philadelphia where she fabricates her own line of art jewelry. She also teaches the art of jewelry fabrication to individual students. Currently, Ms. Baur is a candidate for a BFA at the Tyler School of Art, Temple University.

Ms. Baur's creative life is the passion that drives her art. She has lived and cruised on a sailboat for multiple years. She home schools her 14 year old daughter. She is a published author. She has owned and operates several small businesses.

Ms. Baur is also the live-in care manager for a friend who would otherwise have to live in a nursing home.

Ms. Baur lives and works in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.
